"The People of the United States are the Rightful Masters of both Congress and Courts."—ABRAHAM LINCOLN.

VOL. I. SOLID, STATELY, AND JUDICIOUS, JULY 1, 1860. NO. 2.

OLD ARE OF THE WEST.

BY W. S. ROLLINS.

Up again for the conflict! our banner flies out
And softly around it it sets song and with shout!
Band of brave, firm of heart, should the gallant boy be,
Who bear to the battle, the flag of the Free!
Like our fathers, when Liberty call'd to the rally,
They should pledge in our cause, fortune, honor and life!
And follow wherever the beckon them on,
Till Freedom triumphs, the day of the Free!
Then sing out the banner, the old starry banner,
The banner that honors the freedom of all!
They come from the hillsides, they come from the glen—
From the forests thronged with trolls, and simple, with men;
From town and from hedge, from workshop and farm,
The fearless of heart and the rights of all!
As the mountains born torrents exultingly leap,
Where the dark forest rock, to the sweet of the deep
As the winds of the prairie, the waves of the sea,
They are moving—are coming—the Band of the Free!
Then sing out the banner, the old starry banner,
The banner that honors the freedom of all!
Our leader is one who, with companions will,
Has stood from the time to the brow of the hill,
Undaunted in peril, unswerving in truth,
He has fought a good fight in the Battle of Life;
And we know that he never—no, never—can stand
To be false to the rock and to true to the shell,
Both tried and true, with no stain on his crest,
Then, hurrah boys, for honest Old Abe of the West!
And fling out your banner, the old starry banner,
The signal of triumph for Abe of the West!

The West, where broad acres, from lake shore to sea,
Now wait for the tillers and homes of the free!
Shall we dark tide of slavery roll over the soil,
That Freedom makes bloom like the garden of God?
The bread of our children he from their mouths take,
To feed the fierce dragon that grows on the fields?
No never! the voice of Liberty—of Washington! Hear
Us, we, for Freedom, shall never be betrayed!
Then fling out the banner, the old starry banner,
And we to the conflict with hearts undismayed!

THE STATE OF PARTIES.

Speech of Hon. W. P. Thompson, of Chicago, before the Lincoln and Hamlin Club.

We are about entering upon a contest for the next Presidency, and as it will probably be attended with much warmth and excitement, it behooves each voter and wishes to cool and deliberate, to inform himself of the position and issues upon which the contest is to be conducted, so that he may be prepared to cast his vote understandingly. It is evident that the extension of negro slavery into the Territories is to be the all-absorbing question of the campaign, and that its vast importance will give it great intensity. Already the whole country is dividing into parties upon this question, without longer to so what else is thought or believed about other matters. We have now four distinct parties, viz:

1st. The Southern Democratic;
2d. The Northern Democratic;
3d. The American; and
4th. The Republican.

The Southern Democrats claim that the Constitution of the United States recognizes slave property in the Territories, and that it is the duty of Congress by law to recognize and protect it; and that a Territorial Legislature has no power by authority legislation to exclude it from the Territory or to discriminate against it.

The Northern Democrats also claim that Slavery is recognized by the Constitution, but they hold that it is upon an equality with all other property and subject to legislative action; and that a Territorial Legislature has the power by authority legislation to drive it out of the country. They deny that the Supreme Court decided in the Dred Scott Case that the Territorial Legislature could not legislate about and discriminate against slave property.

The American are for non-interventism. That is, that Congress has no power over the subject, that the question of extension belongs exclusively to the judiciary, and that they are willing to abide by the decision the Courts may make upon the subject.

The Republicans claim that Congress has the same power over the Territories as a State has over the soil within her charter limits; hence, they say the power of Congress to legislate for the Territories is unlimited except by the Constitution of the United States, and that there is nothing in that instrument which inhibits legislation relative to existing slavery in the Territories.

The parties may be again divided into two classes, viz: 1st Those who believe that Congress has power over the subject matter; and, 2d. Those who believe in non-interventism, that is, that Congress has no authority over the subject. In the first of these classes are the Northern Democrats and the Republicans (for anti-slavery purposes, of course). The Democrats say that Congress has the power and should exercise it to protect, the Republicans say that Congress has the power to prohibit, but that Slavery being wrong in itself that the power to legislate should exercise nothing, not even with the joint concurrence and action of every individual member of the community. Those of the second class under this classification, that is the Northern Democrats and Americans believe in non-intervention by Congress as before stated.

Surely, in all this there is a margin sufficiently broad and varied to enable the most faithless to make a satisfactory choice.

The Republicans assert that they occupy the same position upon this question as did those great and good men who won their freedom in times of hard political strife and established our government and administered it for near forty-four years of a century, and they say that those who desire to rebuke and a change of parties should be left to satisfy the public of its necessity.

They are that the Constitution of the United States, says "The Congress shall have power to dispose of and make all needful rules and regulations respecting the Territory or other property belonging to the United States." They remember that the thirteen parent States all had slavery and because of its pernicious tendencies it has been abolished, in a majority of them. They learn that the Continental Congress passed an ordinance in 1787, which excluded slavery from the Territory Northwest of the Ohio river, except as a punishment for crime whereof the party shall have been duly convicted. They remember the National Congressman which restricted negro slavery from the Territory North of 36 deg. 30 min. of North latitude. Then we have lime upon lime, precept upon precept, here a little and there a little to prove that slavery was not popular with the people, that the good and patriotic men of all over the country it was looked upon as a moral, social and political evil, and that all looked forward with hope to the time when it would be wholly eradicated from the land. As a friend of the Missouri Compromise said to me at the Metropolitan Hotel, in the City of New York, in the fall of the year, in the year of our Lord, one thousand eight hundred and forty-eight, "I am for the Missouri Compromise line, because it is the best we can get at the present time." Map of this year, the second regular toast was, "Virginia, the mother of presidents, the cradle, the nursery of genius, the abode of hospitality, the home of chivalry, the cradle of immortality, are crowded with the musics of her sons, who have distinguished her virtues, and won the applause of the world." It is the glorious mission of the Republican party to do the same, and to the applause of the world, that the Republican party will do it. The Democrats say, "Let the people decide." They had no language. For among the chief of these victors, and for which the people have given the loudest applause was their whole condemnation of negro slavery. They had no sentiment and well understood in bearings and without exception worthy of notice. They seem to have forgotten the sage and soul-stirring sentiments of the English poet who wrote,

"Slaughter, blood and slaughter
Still slavery, still blood, still slaughter!
And our thousands I will again have been made to Bleed and groan and die."

But it is not to be denied that a change has taken place in the minds of many of our Democratic brethren in this important part. The extent of that change may best be inferred from an extract of a late political letter of the Hon. A. H. Stephens, of Georgia. He says: "Slavery, in my judgment, nothing to fear from the irrepressible conflict of which we have so much. Slavery rests upon great truths, which can never be successfully assailed by reason or argument. It has grown stronger in the minds of men the more it has been discussed, and it will still grow stronger as the discussion proceeds and time rolls on. Truth is omnipotent and must prevail. We have only to maintain the truth, be firm, patient and wield it aright. Our system rests upon an eternal foundation, and can and will defy all assaults from without."

These are strange and startling doctrines to emanate from our Democratic brethren, in the last half of the nineteenth century, and in the world-famed Northern Europe—as deceptions—are clearing their skirts of slavery, religion, and all other restraints of fraud behaviour. Their utterance in the days of Washington and Jefferson would have consigned their author to political and moral oblivion. And now, without mentioning Mr. S-S sincerity, the inquiry arises, what might have occasioned the change? The reason for this great change seems to be, that the Democrats have found it necessary to rock upon sound assertion only, and it is believed that the people understand, that it is the fact that the force of ease, the desire for show, the greed of gain, and the love of power, have been the great levers in effecting the change in public opinion. It is now the fashion, owing to take a short review of the origin and progress of slavery. The death of President Harrison had placed Mr. Tyler in the Presidential chair. He failed to comply with the wishes of his friends, and was so that account thought to have but little influence. The Democrats and Whigs, who had elected him Vice President, and affiliated with the Democrats, and accordingly sought a nomination for the next Presidential term. At the meeting of the association of Texas came upon the topic. Nothing was thought of at the time by its members but a grand coup d'etat—to make Mr. Tyler's administration popular, and thereby secure his nomination. Texas was accordingly annexed, and President Polk's term was ended, and Mr. Tyler was left out in the cold. Mr. Polk was nominated for the next term, and was elected. The Democrats had gained their end. Texas was annexed, and Mr. Polk

The Nomination of the Boughfaces.

At last Stephen A. Douglas has succeeded in securing a nomination for the Presidency. For years he has labored most assiduously to that end, making everything else bend to it. He has been on all sides of every question; his aims have always been set to catch the popular breeze, and he can "boat sail" with more celerity than any other politician in the nation.

When Douglas entered public life, the Democratic party elevated principles as immovable as the rock of ages. Instead of being made to crush out the spirit of liberty, and to build up an oligarchy, to be controlled by men who openly violate the law, and scorn every thought of the spirit of the age of freedom, and to promote the happiness of mankind. The spirit that animated the fathers prevailed its ranks, and even beyond old ocean, at the mention of its name, tyrants trembled on their thrones, while the hearts of the oppressed took high, in anticipation of one day enjoying the blessings to which it chimed—every man was rightfully entitled. Then love of country was first in the breast of every Democrat, our law givers were tried statesmen, and men who dared utter such sentiments as are daily enunciated by the leaders of the Democratic party, was regarded as a fit subject for a lunatic asylum.

Hot times have changed. The Democratic party has turned aside from its ancient landmarks—has forgotten that oyster is a government of the many, and not of the few.

When our broad principles begin to be dotted over with the leg cabins of the barely pioneer—when the free soil States of the North—were knocked at the door of Congress for admission into the Confederacy, and provided in their constitutions that slavery should not exist within their borders—when the South saw the representation of those steadily increasing while theirs was decreasing in the same ratio, and Southern wing of the party set up a howl of encroachment upon their rights,—detected the course to be pursued upon the slavery question—made war upon free labor and free laboring men, and inaugurated the policy it has from that hour persistently followed.

It was a great national party, but its ranks are broken, it has become sectional in its character, is dividedcto factions and exhibit, who are load-mantled in their denunciations of each other, although both agreeing with the same end in view—the extension of human slavery. Judge Douglas has followed this party at all its windings, with an eye single to the Presidential nomination, and has at last succeeded in securing it. He has played a bold game and has won, although his is but the nomination of one of the factions, and it yet remains to be seen whether the American people are willing to trust the reins of government in the hands of this great political gambler.

Mr. Douglas is not the choice of the Democratic States, and not one of them that remained in the Convention that gave him the nomination will give him its electoral vote. The South repudiates his pet doctrine of "popular" banding, and it may be regarded as a fixed fact that he will come out at the little end of the Presidential horn.

In 1858, when conquering at Washington with certain Republican members of Congress, and urging them to prevent the Republicans of this State from running a candidate for Defeated United States Senator, he declared he was right upon the question of slavery, and was going to the party as fast as he possibly could.

At home he was better known than at the Federal city, and no attention was paid to his hollow-hearted professions of friendship. Then he declared the Republican party was a great national party, but now he denounces its members, as well as members of the Democratic party proper, as Abolitionists and Disunionists, and claims that his is the party that embodies the Union sentiment of the country. His variety is unparalleled; his assumption is only surpassed by him who had rather rule in Hell than reign in Heaven.

The Enquirer Don't Like the Nomination.

The Richmond Enquirer, the organ of Gov. Wise, is not pleased with the action of the Chicago Convention. It declares that the great leaders of the party were sacrificed because of their prominent identification with the doctrines of Republicans, and that, in the Convention, the "anti-slavery doctrine, in its most offensive place, was openly asserted. To counteract influence, both the great representative men of the party were broadly avowed, and an illiterate understrapper received the Democratic nomination for the party. Then, all fearful of having gone too far to be in the temper to divide division with obscurity, the Convention set to work to frame the ticket, of casting aside all pretensions to nationality by the nomination of a purely sectional ticket—both nominees being selected from non-slave holding States."

If by Anti-slavery doctrine, is meant opposition to the extension of slavery into territory now free, it is true, but if it is meant that this platform countenances the right to interfere with slavery in the States where it now exists, it is false. The Republican party believes that the principles promulgated in the Declaration of Independence are true, and that the sovereignty of the States, and have determined it shall not be dissolved, notwithstanding the threats of the secession party of the Slave States of the South, every one of whom would have no believe he has a private plantation upon which he feeds and clothes and is always ready for a fight—saving when hawk-knives are the weapons selected.

Mr. Lincoln is a representative man of his party. It is true he does not belong to "one of the old families of Virginia."

He is the son of a working man, a western pioneer, and cannot boast of being descended from one of the "cavaliers" who crossed the ocean in quest of their country to Virginia, soon after the settlement of that State, and who he can boast of as being his ancestors, and who, had they not emigrated to Virginia, would have been, and lofty patriotism; three things with which the editors of the Enquirer are not endowed.

Mr. Lincoln is the peer in intellect of Virginia's oldest sons. He is one of Nature's noblemen, who has too well the notion of the States emanated by the blood of our fathers, to act with, or countenance a party, one of whose leaders proposed treason every day, during the late session of Congress.

Mr. Lincoln has gone forth, Lincoln will be elected, and the friends of the Enquirer who are now in office at Washington, will cease they always have been true Republicans. Its contemptible Bug is worthy a sheet that declares "men are not here to equal rights; life and liberty are inalienable—and that "free society is a monstrous abortion, and "slavery the beautiful, holiest, most sacred being which they are trying to adopt."

HE ACCEPTS.

The nomination of Breckenridge, will, beyond cavil, secure the election of Lincoln. We have never had any doubt, on that score. The Democrats, cannot, doubtless." When the telegraph brought the news of his nomination, the friends of Douglas, felt sorrowful, but, they dare not accept it, but he has settled the matter by doing so formally.

The Democratic party is hard man to understand. He is talented, generous, brave, but belongs to the non-commital school of politicians. He has been so long in the habit, some person's feelings should be hurt. We remember when the Locomotive question was agitated, that public sentiment, nearly every man in the nation was openly for or against Jackson's policy, Jno. C. Breckenridge, neither by word nor act, signified his preference. He was claimed by both parties, and it was not until long after the Hero of New Orleans had left the Chair of State and the Union of States?" The conception of the maker is a pretty, a patriotic and a national one. Anyone who stands both pro and anti must be for their, and much for the enemies which perplexed the Democrats.

Your obedient servant,
A. Lincoln.

Can't Tell the Truth.

The Lancaster (Pa.) Intelligencer, the home organ of James Buchanan, (the editor of which paper he treated with the basest of ingratitude,) calls "Old Abe" the two shilling candidate.

Sandiron is engaged in assault business as an his illustrious master, j. h. when he advocated a reduction of the wages of labor to five cents per day. Seriously, Buchanan is a clever fellow, but his pen has been writing democracy so long, that it is impossible for it to write the truth.

Wants an Expunger.

Notwithstanding the disgraceful conduct of James Buchanan in prostituting the high position he occupies to promote his private ends, notwithstanding the desperate attempt to control the present Congress by the election of members who would not only hide the corruption of himself and Cabinet, but would also participate in it, he finds some men of degree attached to the resolution of contempt poured upon him by the lower House of Congress. He seems greatly desirous of having related his oath of office, having attempted to pollute the ballot box, rehearsed two presses in Philadelphia, and sanctioned the robbery of the public treasury. He has employed the Secretary of the Navy to award important contracts to parties because of the number of votes they could bring, when absolutely responsible parties offered to take them at much lower figure.

Corruption has stamped on his every lineament, and the action of the House will cling to him as did the meek upon the horse of the ashen hue, of his brother. The administration of Martin Van Buren was noted for the corruption of its officials. Scarcely an officer of state, who had the handling of public funds, but what proved a defaulter. While the affairs of government were conducted on a scale regarded so economy, and hundreds of thousands of dollars were uniformly squandered; it was not, nor could it be said, that Mr. Van Buren or his Cabinet, had put their hands into the public money closed, and stolen numerous dollars, or that they had member of his Cabinet drew up private contracts, with the knowledge of the President, by which a certain number of dollars of the money thus received, was to be paid to partisan leaders to carry certain election districts. These things have been of late the present administration,—they have been exposed, and deep and settled is the contempt, all right-minded men feel for them. Men who should be able to look upon as patriots and honest men, but whom course shows them to be worse than the highwayman, who demands "your money or your life."

"Tribute to their robbery have authority. When Angels are trembling."

Col. Florence of Pennsylvania, who hold a seat in the House, has been sorely tried in that City under his thumb by the grace of the Nero of the White House, and per consequence of all the tools and toady's who dance at his beck and nod. Florence quiver, being like Uriah Heap "a very humble man," rendered himself ridiculous by his attempt to force the resolution into the journal the resolution of censure passed upon his friend and master. He was sorely due to chastisement, and he received it by placing Heaton. Those who know the man, were aware that it would be like the turkey hatched with a hen, he was painted off as an eagle. Tom Florence among the Whig's at home will pass; but when states' men assemble, he will be found wanting, out. "Occasional," of Philadelphia, says:

"Talking of Colonel Florence, reminds me that Mr. Buchanan has lately grown quite angry with the Colonel, for his share in the word of the Covode Committee, and the resolution of censure, which was adopted from the record. A few days ago while passing through the Capitol, he met some of the devotees, he exclaimed, in the agony of his feelings, "Oh, I had a Brutus in the House!" whereupon the generous and gallant champion of the Pennsylvania, Colonel Florence, who formed one of coterie, rose to the occasion, and, with a generous and kingly his breast in an impulse of inspiring self-sacrifice he exclaimed, "I will be your Brutus!" Upon which the President, took the excellent Colonel into his arms and embraced him, amidst the tears with overgushing tears my informant was not able to say.

Chair of State.

The delegation to the Chicago Convention from Illinois, presented to view a beautiful rustic chair which occupied a prominent position upon the platform of the Wigwam, and attracted much attention. From the fact that it was to be presented to the person who should secure the nomination of the Democratic party, it is made a doubt, by four varieties of timber, representing the thirty-three States and Kansas, the name of the Union, and the motto, "Our Federal union—The presentation was duly made to Mr. Lincoln, and he reply he forwarded the following:

Springfield, Ill., June, 1860.

Mr Dean Richmond—Sir, which you signate as the "Chair of State," is duly at hand and I accept it, with the kind wish that it symbolizes, might it not be called the "Chair of State and the Union of States?" The conception of the maker is a pretty, a patriotic and a national one. Anyone who stands both pro and anti must be for their, and much for the enemies which perplexed the Democrats.

Your obedient servant,
A. Lincoln.

Won't Resign.

The Republican press is unanimously urging whether Douglas will resign. Make yourselves easy, gentlemen. Douglas never resigns anything in the way of office. He know who cannot be elected President, and Illinois will continue to be disgraced by having him represent her, until the end of his term in the U. S. Senate.

PROPERTY AND MEN.

We are told by his writers, that "property is anything, the value whereof may be measured by money," which measure must always depend upon circumstances, for "the surrounding" may give certain descriptions of property great value, while in other localities it would be almost worthless, as an acre of land in the heart of our city would be valued by millions of dollars, while the same amount at the head of our great lake would not be worth ten cents for any purpose. Yet that difference does not by any means lie in the intrinsic value of the land, but in the necessity of the different uses to which they may be put.

Now this position takes us still further back and we conclude that after all, it depends upon the men who are there, for if our city were vacated, and one of us left there, the owner of one of the central blocks, our property would demand, in value in proportion to the size of the piles of bricks and mortar heaped on it, which instead of being useful would be in the way, and prevent our obtaining a subsistence by the sweat of our brows.

We find further, that among savages, property is of very little value, and among them, scarcely any disposition to accumulate it.

We then come to another conclusion, that its value further depends upon the men men put it to, and that the higher the civilization is, the greater the value of the property.

If then the value of property depends upon men and the uses they put it to, how it is effected by overvaluing and undervaluing it, and withdrawing them from the cities we will find that property, except food and clothing, and shelter, is valued very quickly? Can it, in the nature of things, be other than deleterious—making those things which they are intended for the value, and increasing the price of those which they cannot and permanently injure, not only those who are thus injured, but those who are out—that it has this effect, requires no argument. It has no only to look at our last excess to make the discovery, or rather the confirmation of its truth.

So this leaves the idea of doing the slave owners a wrong is keeping him out of territories, so only prevent him from doing the entire community so injury which age could not repair, so he injured himself, and the slave man in the whole territory is permanently increasing the value of the property; while any one say that when government, or any other power, has to interpose in the protection, that there is no power to protect them from the great evil of having will, which happens to be an immoral one, I think not.

Justice cannot be done to this subject by a newspaper article of proper length and will I hope to accomplish now is to set the people "a thinking" and to do so more thoroughly I will give some illustrations.

I own a plantation of ten thousand acres and use thousands of dollars in the enterprise, isolate myself and do little more than make "both ends meet." Now suppose that I have a neighbor, who owns twenty-five hundred acres, and I know, because my one doubt but that the value of the property of my land, and the neighbor's acres would exceed tenfold that of the plantation, with all the men counted as property—what is the reason that increases the value of surrounding property, and the traffic of the entire district. Freemen, you are asked to vote for Lincoln, this fall. Whether you will have the village or the plantation in the territories. You cannot have both, and your vote will be in making money for "yourselves and your posterity" think of these things, and then vote for Lincoln and the Republican ticket, for "Honest Old Abe" and his associates.

"The Coming Contest, the Crisis of Republicanism."

We are pleased to announce that Mr. Julius Kime, who has already once before delivered a lecture on Know Nothingism, to his very eloquent address on Know Nothingism, and upon whom the press of the rural districts of Illinois, and Indiana, have bestowed their encomiums, for the brilliancy and eloquence displayed in his lecture on Hungary, has consented to deliver his above titled Address, Friday next, July 6th, at the "Lincoln Wide Awake Club," 268 Randolph Street. We hope to see there all the Republican Clubs of the City, as well as other citizens, who listen to a brilliant and eloquent exposition of Republicanism by an honest and enthusiastic Republican.

The Irrepressible Fire Eater.

The "Irrepressible Conflict" spoken of by the Prophet Seward, has not exactly arrived yet, but a "conflict" of as great proportions, for the time being has come, and is being exhibited at Baltimore. We cannot say we regret its advent. We may welcome the "conflict," and the more "irrepressible" the better, for Heaven knows we want no further particulars with the South ern Fire Eaters. God never made more fools, generous, kind, open-hearted and honest men than the most of the Southern people—but their leaders—the wicked, dishonest, selfish, and the cut-throats—like cowed vampires—the fire-eating, dirt-eating bigger cannibals—who invoke pirate laws, and Philadelphians for treats, and billingsgate for literature,—these pestilent Fungi that hang around the outskirts of the Democratic camp, to act as spies for Black Republicans, and seek every opportunity to rule or ruin the only national party in the country. These men, we say, are not for assimilation with a respectable party, and we have long desired to see just such a "conflict" as the lights, spring of, in order to enable the Democracy to get rid of a class of fossil politicians that would even sour vinegar and kill a mad-dog. Alexander Stephens, says:

"No further partnership with Southern fire-eaters," after they have repudiated you. It won't do, Frank. That game is played out. In 1858 every Democratic candidate in the Northwest "attacked for freedom," and he will have no more representatives, than the most zealous Republican. They hated the slave-power, were willing to disregard partizan and local ties, and vote right; but the election being over, as a matter of course their pledges were broken, for no sane man supposes the solid Southern Democracy to keep pledges made before election. Were they to do so it would be an unique exception. It would be important to conciliate the political sharks—the social vampires—the fire-eating, bigger-swallowing cannibals, who have exercised the influence and votes in Convention of the miserable creatures, who, according to his pet organ in Wisconsin, are branded contempt.

Lucifer (Douglas's man, Friday), who claims to look like the "little Jesus," wears gloves like him, and like him daily punishes a large amount of tangibleat whiskey, delighted in killing sentiment, and in the presentatives with one arm about the neck of that Congressional dancing jack Editor of South Carolina, and the other around the elegant specimen of the Virginia chivalry who declined it a relic of barbarism, to fight with knives—knives which therefore wouldn't go on the field with Potter.

Such fawning upon, and cringing to the slave power as was manifested in Convention by the blowers and stickers of Douglas during the last session of Congress, will never winnowed before.

The South, however, refused to swallow him. The dose was too nauseous for even them; and to secure a majority, the Douglas west his friends will swear till everything is black and blue, that he said they hate the South, and especially the institution of slavery. We doubt not the Southern leaders will appreciate the exalted opinion Boughs, through the Press, has expressed of them, and on the first occasion that presents itself, will bring his Northern doughfaced friends to their narrow house, and compel them to swallow a few more doses of nigger.

Much in Pump. The Southern leaders despise you, much as you hate them, and your portraits drawn by each other are remarkably truthful.

Our Next Governor.

The Belleville Advocate says, that "people now is better satisfied to be called the father of Republicanism, in Illinois, than Mr. Yates."

At the time the Nebraska bill was introduced into Congress, he was a member of the House from the 6th District, with other members of Congress, and trembling in doubt as to the course they should take, he raised his voice in opposition to that measure, and the Nebraska bill which has seldom been excelled for clear foresight, power and eloquence. He spoke principally of the evil which that bill would produce, and never was prophecy more fully verified. That Speech bring among the first and most dangerous to the repeal of the Missouri Compromise, did much towards organizing the forces in the Essex against that measure, and much towards giving direction to political sentiment in Illinois. His powerful opposition brought down upon him a vehement bitter crusade from the Democracy, and under the direct instructions of Mr. Douglas, they succeeded in the next election, and he was sulted in his defeat, yet Mr. Yates, like a true patriot, said that though he went down, he was rejected to see the Democrat go no more worthy man is not within our ranks. Earnest, sincere, able and eloquent, the Republican party have in him a leader worthy of a brilliant order. Hundreds of honest Democrats all over the State will support Mr. Yates, and he will be elected over Cavern, or by an overwhelming majority.

Old Time Democracy.

Last week we published a number of extracts from the writings of the fathers giving their views upon the subject of slavery. We have republished it in this number, and by its side have placed a column of the opinions of "New light Democracy" upon the same subject! Read them together and draw your own conclusions.

Hon. Vital Jarrot.

The State Central Committee having suggested Mr. Jarrot as a proper person to fill the vacancy upon the State ticket in place of Hon. F. A. Hoffman, who declines, being a candidate for Lieut. Governor, we have placed his name upon the ticket, and will keep it their until the election, unless it should be determined to call the State Convention together to make a nomination. We know Col. Jarrot well—he was a member of the State Legislature during the session of 1857, where we were Chief Clerk of the House of Representatives the among the most influential and influential Republicans was Vital Jarrot. He is not only a working Republican, but has been of back bone, and was one among were who bullies, swaggered, and blustered. The "Rail Splitter" don't profess to be very pious, but like Col. Jarrot, he will tell the truth in language likely to be understood, tho' Satan, the guardian angel of the black democracy should object.

Canvassing and Cussing.

"Northern Democrats have been manifestly unfaithful to the cause of Congress for fighting the battles of the south. But one Issue Senator remained true to the interest of the whole country, and he those Southern Senators are trying to kill by canvassing and cussing."—Cleveland Plaindealer.

Northern doughfaces were repudiated by their masters yesterday, the same as during in sunshine of Southern favor. No man in the nation cringed to the slave power for more than a decade of years, and he did Stephen A. Douglas, that "one Issue Senator." Whenever any dirty work was to be done, he was ready to do it, and the Southern man would debase himself by digging it, Douglas was called upon, and with the alacrity that the mean man bends to the crack of the overseer's whip, did he respond to their bidding. He is held in utter contempt by all true non-slave holding men.

"He brings the sight of a dog, he is dirtied, unloved him

Pa. All sides, from Democratic hangers, A friend, unloved him

Pa. Pa. Pa. Pa."

The Washington Constitution offers the curious one of its slanderous attacks on Mr. Lincoln:

"We can honestly say that we are glad the friends of Mr. Lincoln have taken the ground of a direct and unqualified hostility account, as member of Congress, to be expunged, with a view to ascertain whether the scandal concerning his having had several pairs of boots made for his feet at once and of course paid for out of the public treasury, was or was not well founded. We published the allegation to that effect from the Springfield Journal, and the Chicago Press, our expression of a hope that some one would investigate it, and that, in the circumstance might arise to many, we thought, that if true, it indicated such a disposition of the Republicans on the part of Mr. Lincoln of the duties and responsibilities of a public servant, and of the principles of honor and honesty, that it ought to be known to the people who are now asked to elevate him to the highest office in the land, and entrust, if need be, with that such weapons damage their authors more than the enemies against whom they are aimed, decided to see the charge fall into disuse. We freely say that the officers of the House of Representatives, having in charge the sanctuary of the Capitol, should have published newspapers that the records of his office contain no evidence of any transaction like that laid to Mr. Lincoln's charge."

West Side Wide Awakes.

The live young Republicans of west Chicago have organized a "wide awake," club and already it numbers nearly a hundred members. Capt. Raymond has been elected commander and he is doing about most throughly. We hope soon to hear of an organization on the North side and West side, that is equal to, or at least every ward in the city. It is necessary for the friends of freedom to be "wide awake in the coastal. As old Democracy intrenched at the prospect of the Republican prey, and prepare, in the States of New York and Pennsylvania to make a desperate effort of darkness, and running but one electoral ticket. It is time for us to wake up in Chicago. We are called upon to do our duty, and our vindication meeting has yet been called.—Let those who have the matter in charge see to it, and let the Cobb and Van Dals have their tickets to the field and the time to prepare for contest, determined effort is at hand. Let us to work.

A Lincoln Ball.

The Republicans of that "Hive," town Whiteside, Ill., have raised a Lincoln Rail 120 feet high, from the top of which proudly floats the flag of our Union. It bears the name of our stand bearer and Lincoln & Hamlin. We hope to have the pleasure of visiting Whiteside, during the Canvass—Every body is invited to see what the moral vineyard is for "Old Abe." The scarcity of Democrats in that section seems for the small amount of whiskey that is sold there.

Bobtail Nominee.

Herabell V. Johnson a Missouri Compromise—Nebraska Bill—Popular Sovereignty—Slave Code—Dodge—Fire-eating Democrat has been placed on the bobtail Democratic Presidential ticket for Vice President. Literally though great on optics, will fail to discover the Douglas star in the political heavens. Benson—it has winked out.

Chips and Splinters.

Dap. Democrat.—"The Republicans look sore this morning" (after little Pa nominated.)

Bystander, aloud—Do they indeed? Lets see. Sour, "to fly off, to mount on angle's wing." You are right, Eri. They do carry heads in air. The nomination just suits them. It is a very cozy ticket to beat! Shake your hats on that!

Our party is National—Eh.

National you should have said.

We have representative delegates from all the States.—Eh.

When did you hear from Missouri, S. C., Va., Tenn., Ky. and Oregon last? Problem 40 sec.

Douglas is the strongest man the Convention could have nominated.—Eh.

Yes; and oh, so strong! that the political edifiicates of the Southern "Chivalry" stand niggers' couldn't endure him. "His offence is rank, and smells to Heaven."

Hush, Brer! What is that?

That? Why, that is a "Kill-kenny cat" and the Baltimore MEW-SICK.

Well, dedd? What do they mean by "Responsible roughly" at Charleston and Baltimore?

Don't know, child! It above your comprehension. Children should be seen and not heard!

You're a Democrat, Pap! You ought to know! Some of the DEMOCRATS KNOW, pap's sure!

Hush, Jim, or I'll speak you, and put you to bed. I'm worried enough without your questions.

[Scene of the D——— to do know what is "I. C." means, and they a poor boy's father is wrestlin about this time.]—Ed. commente.

Douglas will find "Jerdan am a hard road to travel." Before he gets to the Presidency he has got to improve his limb and muscle. He will have to Dunk-Bell Jerdan a little—Much over a lofty ridge—(Brockeridge)—pass a long lane—(Jo. Lane)—and do the thing impossible, which is to outrun Lincoln. His cast-iron drudgeless way, and these limbs of his will never carry him through!

Plantation Nigger.—Massa, if we Niggers could vote, we'd show de white folks sum politicks. Yes, I get great respects for Jan Unrue I hit Fee down on dat der Douglas, kase he gwy pass to enemy body.

Master—Hush, Sambo, Douglas isn't for Jan Unrue, and as to voting, we'll vote for you and save you the trouble.

P. N.—No trouble, Massa; not a bit—We'd se lief vote as pick cotton.

Wide Awakes.

The "Chicago Wide Awake Club" had a most enthusiastic meeting on Tuesday evening last. A re-organization of the Club was had and the following gentlemen were elected officers:

President—J. J. RICHARDS.

Vice President—S. D. PARRY, A. C. HERMS, F. A. PIERCE.

Secretary—G. I. Waterman.

Treasurer—Job. S. Ward.

Directors—A. G. Hoyt, S. D. Ward, C. Sundell, Theobald Hartman, Walther Harry.

Col. Wm. S. Johnson, Jr., was re-elected Commander, and Messrs. F. Meyer, W. Hudson Osborne, and A. S. Chadbourne, Captains.

The Club have secured for their use, a spacious hall in Lake street, which they propose to furnish in a manner suitable for general campaign purposes as well as their regular drill. Their meetings are held every Tuesday and Friday evenings, and are devoted to drill, political discussion, speeches &c., and every friend of the cause, whether citizens or strangers, visiting the City, is cordially invited to be present. This organization is the result of an enthusiastic love for Republican principles, and is a centre around which all liberty-loving men may gather and express their feelings in action. Let the Republican young men of Chicago see to it, that our fame turns as bright, and does not fall behind that of the east. We hope to see before election day, the light of at least fifteen hundred torches illuming these streets, and to see this light which has been kindled in New England, increase in brilliancy as it pushes westward. Let every young man see to it, that his influence is felt in this matter, and report himself with torch in hand and his voice cage-hard quarters. Remember Wide Awake Hall No. 29 Lake street.

☞ Are you going into the Country to celebrate the 4th of July? If you are, be sure to call at John B. Meyers 74 Dearborn street, and get some of his choice brands of Cigars. He is receiving them direct from Havana every week.

☞ Ella Smalley, 331 West Lake street, is the oldest and best Cutter, Tuck, and Ruffling and Plaiting Dress Maker in the City. He is an enterprising citizen, and will allow none but the best of work to leave his shop.

For "The Rail Splitter."

REPUBLICAN SONG.

Respectfully dedicated to the Sons of the "Wide Awakes."

SUNG AT W. C. HALLAM.

Tune—"Columbia's the gem of the ocean."

Oh! Lincoln the hope of the nation,
The pride of the brave and the free;
In the work of redemption and salvation,
We offer full homage to thee—
Thy cause we so cordially embrace,
Be ascended from liberty's voice,
Hail! Lincoln! Hail! Lincoln! Hail!
Three cheers for the honest and the true.

Chorus:
Three cheers for the brave and the true,
Three cheers for the honest and the true—
Hail! Lincoln! Hail! Lincoln! Hail!
Three cheers for the honest and the true!

When tyrants in threatening the nation,
And dark clouds shall overlook from view,
The men for the hour and the station,
Are those who have cast their votes for you,
Then fling out our banner, and ever
Keep this our proud motto in view,
Oh! Lincoln and Hamlin forever,
Three cheers for the brave and the true.

Chorus:
Three cheers, &c.

Long and a mournful spell impelled,
Will give us the leaders we crave;
In the honest and fearless of weather,
We know they are true, true and brave.
Then rally around them, and ever
Keep this our proud motto in view,
Oh! Lincoln and Hamlin forever,
Three cheers for the brave and the true.

Chorus:
Three cheers, &c.

Agents Wanted.

We want an active and energetic agent in every town in the North West, to canvass for subscribers for "The Rail Splitter," to whom we will pay a fair compensation for his services. In the meantime, we call upon all Republicans who desire the success of "Old Abe," and Republican principles, to aid us in extending its circulation. Fifty cents for the sample is a small amount.

Will not our exchanges favor us by publishing this notice?

Cared In.

Maj. Ramsey of the Proviso Union, the able and fearless Republican paper in Illinois, and the one too that dealt Douglas sledge hammer blows in the contest of 1858 has been sick and bedsted the Douglas flag. Hereafter he must dance to the music of the Times, which declared the adjournment of the Democratic party. The order will soon come from the White House to take down the tall splinters painted with the stars and stripes in honor of which are inscribed the name of Hendricks or Lane. He must obey it or "tuff goes his head."

Hon. Thomasson's Speech

On the first page of our paper will be found the able, eloquent and argumentative speech of Hon. Wm. P. Thomasson of this city. Mr. Thomasson is a gentleman of high social and political position, and was a member of the last Congress from Kentucky, of which State he is a native. He is perfectly familiar with slavery in all its bearings. We bespeak for it an attentive perusal.

THE CITY.

☞ The 4th of July last hand, and every patriot in Illinois, will of course, celebrate it. One of the most pleasant ways of doing so, is by getting up exhibitions of fire-works. There are half-a-dozen of pieces in the City to be set off on the 4. A. Talcott, 67 Randolph street, has the most extensive and cheapest assortment in Chicago. He is receiving large orders every day from all parts of the West for them; and a person who has once patronized him, will always use no other place. Talcott's works are all the rage in Chicago. Don't forget the place, 67 Randolph street, next door to "The Rail Splitter Office."

Attention—Wide Awakes!

Sam Dunn & Co., No. 101 Randolph Street, are selling Wide Awake Uniforms, at very reasonable rates. Let our country friends remember this.

F. E. Rigby & Son.

F. E. Rigby & Son, No. 81 Randolph Street, have one of the most extensive and elegant assortments of Fine Hat & Fancy Shade Papers in the city. They are besides elegant and accomplished Ornamental and Sign Painters, and are deserving of public patronage.

PAINTING.—Among the best fancy and Ornamental Painters in the City, is B. F. Chase, No. 108 Randolph street. Mr. Chase paints Banners, Flags, Transparencies, and as reasonable prices. Some of his work we have seen, will compare favorably with any ever done in the North West.

☞ One of the most extensive and most fashionable, and yet cheapest establishments for the sale of Millinery and Dress Goods, is H. M. Wetherell. We say so because our better-half has so pronounced it, and says that such is the opinion of all the ladies of taste and fashion in the City.

One thing we do know, and that is, that there is continually a great rush of ladies there, and that they never go away without a bonnet, and a rolling countenance.

☞ John L. Rose, Agent for the Shungopavi Copper Company, and dealer in foreign and domestic Liquors, is continually in the receipt of No. 1, Cigars and Liquors. He has constantly a large stock, and and those who wish to buy had better drop in on him. His place of business is 18 Dearborn street.

☞ Jno. B. Flood is about establishing a Letter Dispatch Post, upon the principal of the Celebrated Blood's Dispatch in Philadelphia. It is a thing much needed, and Mr. Flood who is a young gentleman of energy of character, deserves the liberal support of our citizens.

☞ Those who patronize J. Willett & Co., may feel bound to do so, and be toolishly low prices. We know by experience that Willett always gives us those who patron him a good article, and will keep none other. The next time you invest in boots or shoes, drop into his place of business under the Matteson House, Randolph street.

☞ The business card of Johnson & Diverey, No. 199 South Water street, will be found in our advertising columns. This is one of the most extensive establishments in the North-West, and their stock of Wines, Brandies and Liquors of every description is of a superior quality. They import directly from France and Germany, and present nothing to recommend it to quote, should not fail to call on them.—With Col. Diverey the people are already well acquainted, and we look upon the attainments of the entire community, when we say, Chicago has no better or more correct business man than Diverey.

They are also agents for Lill & Diverey's celebrated malt liquors. Persons in the country should write to them, for the best liquors, may depend upon receiving a pure article.

☞ Col. Chauncey I. Watkins, No. 93 Randolph street, is Notary Public and Commissioner of Deeds for all the States and Territories. Business connected with dispatch—Cheap for Cash.

As a meeting of the Wide Awake Club of Chicago, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

Resolved—That the thanks of this Club be and are hereby tendered to the "Chicago Press and Tribune Co.," for their very generous donation of Fifty Dollars to this Club; and we trust that their efforts so bold and so well directed in the cause in which we are all engaged, may be crowned with success, and the Banner so nobly rewarded.

Resolved—That the thanks of this Club be, and are hereby tendered to the Hon. I. N. Arnold, Hon. B. F. Ayer, Hon. J. Esq., C. H. Farwell Esq., Asher Carter Esq., Wm. L. Church Esq., Wm. H. Hundley Esq., and Hon. Wm. Bross, for their donations to this Club.

Resolved—That the thanks of this Club be, and are hereby tendered to the Hon. I. W. Arnold, Hon. B. F. Ayer, for their unsolicited munificent donations to this Club.

Resolved—That the thanks of this Club be, and are hereby tendered to the Hon. I. W. Arnold, Hon. B. F. Ayer, for their

OLD TIME DEMOCRACY.

New-Light Democracy.

The "Democracy" is the same every where—North, South, East, and West. It seeks the ascendancy of the same principles, and the success of the same measures, in all sections.—[Lind. Gazette.

The Democrats of the South in the present canvass contend very the chief ground of defence and cause for Slavery, for they seek not merely to maintain it where it is, but to extend it into regions where it is unknown.—[Richmond Enquirer.

The "Democracy" is national. It is the same in Maine and Massachusetts that it is in Virginia and South Carolina.—[Indy. Argus.

Nor will it avail us aught if it shall be the region is most happy and best situated in the universe, if, instead of it, we stop there, we weaken our cause by the very argument intended to strengthen it, for we have yet to take into our Territories human beings unfit for liberty, self-government, and equal association with us. Where will we go a step further. We must show that Africans Slavery is a moral, religious, national, and probably, in the general, a necessary institution of society.—[Richmond Enquirer.

We rejoice in our candidates as national—in our principles as national—the same everywhere.—[Senator Bright.

Make the laboring man the slave of one man instead of the slave of society, and he would be happier.—[Ibid.

Two hundred years of liberty have made white laborers a pauper class.

Free society has failed, and that which he saw free must be subjugated.—[Senator Mason, of Virginia.

The platform on which we have placed our candidates is no sectional ship, it is broad enough to cover, and does cover, the whole Union. The principles are the same in the free and in the slave States.—[Senator Dawson.

Free society is monstrous abortion, and Slavery is the normal society, and whatever being which they are trying to adopt.

THE LAWES ARE CONTRIVED FAR BETTER THAN THE FREE LABORERS OF THIS NORTH OUR SLAVES ARE NOT ONLY BETTER OFF AS TO PHYSICAL COMFORT, BUT THEY ARE MORE, AND THEIR MORAL CONDITION IS BETTER.—[Richmond Enquirer.

I trust the day will come when the principles of Democracy, as understood and practised in the South, will spread over the entire country.—[Senator Evans.

Men are not born entitled to equal rights. It would be sacrilege to the Deity to say some were born with soulless co their backs, and others booted and spurred to ride them, and the riding does them good.

Life and liberty are not inalienable.

The Declaration of Independence is an already false and shortcoming falsehood.—[Richmond Enquirer.

Shall the Democratic party for this in one to oppose the existence of Slavery? No, indeed! THERE IS NOT A SINGLE DEMOCRAT IN THE UNION, FROM THE NORTH OPPOSED TO THE EXTENSION OF SOUTHERN SOCIETY OR SOCIAL ESTABLISHED ORDER OF "SLAVERY," and they only wait the fruit spoken out, and things called by their right name, to accept the Abolition slanger from the Republican, and to bury its benefited tools in the profound obscurity they have prepared deep of public contempt.—[N. Y. Day Book, Dem. paper.

Slavery exists in Kansas under the Constitution.—Senator Buchanan.

If the Constitution carries Slavery there (to the Territories), without affirmative law, power on earth can take it away.—[Senator Cass.

Colfax on Lincoln.

The Hon. Schuyler Colfax wrote a letter as the Republicans of the District he represents, and which he will continue to represent, as he has been nominated. In this letter he reviews the proceedings of Congress, showing that the Republicans in that body have been faithful to their pledges. He says, Congress, he speaks in the following eloquent language:

"However men may differ as to political principles, no one is the broad land, from the most gifted Senator to the illiterate pauper, has ever whispered the slightest doubt of the unbending integrity and inflexible firmness of Abraham Lincoln. As a happy era, indeed, will be inaugurated when a President who is our Wise Heros, who, unlike the present incumbent, will be faithful to our protest against Congress investigating the official conduct of his administration, but will, on the contrary, armed with conscious rectitude, challenge and invite the most searching of forced or foe. In other respects, too, the choice of the Chicago Convention was exceedingly fortunate. Raised amid the abundance of the prairies, and poverty, without the benefit of classical or collegiate education, and with only such advantages as could be acquired during the intervals of frontier life, the man thus standard-bearer has so cultivated, in maturer years, his native intellect, that he has proved before the American people now, a giant in intellect as he is in stature, and one of the best and most experienced statesmen of the country of the Republic. Nor is this all. His character will prove, if our conjecture is right, the Presidency is not more accessible to the child of wealth, or station, and of fashion, than, by the poor farm-boy of the Western prairies—and that, if anywhere else in the wide world, is merit the true test of distinction and fame. Honest, as he undoubtedly will be, fearless, and active as ever, and he knows better how fitting the states and jewels that adorn the most talented and distinguished diplomatists from abroad. To attain such a desirable result as this, and to restore the Government to the principles of its founders, let us all labor, personally and morally, and politically. Long, as has been well said by another, that 'With the faith of Abraham, and the courage of Hamil al, we shall surely conquer the Wrong and make into Right.'
